

TWO SENTENCED IN 7,572 TOTAL AS DRAFT DESERTERS

Of 729 Arrested, 427 Probably Will Be Released, Says
Attorney Caffey.

A record of two men sentenced for desertion for violation of the Selective Service Act out of a total of 7,572 men against whom prosecutions were started on charges of desertion more than two years ago, in the Southern District of New York, was announced yesterday by United States Attorney Caffey.

In all only 729 men have been arrested, and 427 of these now seem certain to be released as a result of proceedings to quash indictments against them.

Of the men arrested four have been actually turned over as deserters by the civil authorities to the army authorities. With the two men sentenced they make a total of six who so far have been proved deserters.

The deputy marshals investigating the cases have been able to complete only 3,574 of the cases involved.

The trial of L. J. Judolowski, a merchant, of No. 104 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, the only prisoner at Governor's Island charged with desertion as a result of the publication of the draft lists, is to begin next Monday. This will be the first case tried in this State as a result of the lists.

Judolowski will be represented by Arthur Werther as counsel. The prosecution will be handled by the Judge Advocate's office of the Second Corps Area.

In defense of its publication of the names of Henry Gamboosi, Olof Olson and Gustav Adolph Olson as deserters, the War Department has issued a statement that their cases have been investigated, and statements showing they served during the war were substantiated.

The War Department says: "A careful investigation of these cases in the War Department shows that Henry Gamboosi was given deferred classification by his local board on industrial grounds, but that in July of 1918 his local board was notified that he was no longer engaged in the employment which had resulted in the deferment of his call, and that he was reclassified and placed in Class 1; that on Sept. 5, 1918, he was automatically inducted into the service and upon his failure to report in response to this order, he was certified as a deserter. This man, his name being spelled in the Army records as "Gamboosi," is now serving in the Ordnance Department at Camp Stanley, Tex., having enlisted after the war, in April of 1919. There being no record of prior service performed in his case, his status on the records as a draft deserter, and his name was properly published as such.

"The records show Olof Olson to have been inducted into the military service by his local board on Sept. 29, 1917, and failing to report in response to his call for service, he was certified as a deserter. There are records of many men in the army bearing the name of Olson, but no record of service of the Olson in question has been found.

"Gustav Adolph Olson was inducted into the service on June 6, 1918, and several unavailing efforts were made at that time to locate him, with the result that he was subsequently certified as a deserter. A careful check of the army records reveals the service of no one bearing this name whose description, age or address corresponds in any way with the information furnished by this man at the time of his registration."

Two of the men named in to-day's list of Local Board No. 163 are said to have served in the army. Frank Polese of No. 414 East 119th Street was drafted in 1917, according to his father, Tony, and went to Camp Upton. After a month's service he was re-examined and dismissed as physically unfit, he said.

Isidore Ruderman of No. 152 East 116th Street is said by neighbors to have served with the 58th Infantry in France and to have been honorably discharged in May, 1919.

Stricken with consumption when the draft call came, Frank Lasso of No. 464 East 116th Street died from the disease two and one-half years later, according to Mrs. Mary Girolano. Lasso, who is survived by a widow and two children, Mrs. Girolano said, registered for the draft, was examined and rejected because of tuberculosis.

Because he was employed as a letter carrier in the New York Post Office, Frank Moore of No. 1629 Park Avenue was excused from service by draft officials. Mrs. P. E. Moore said yesterday.

With his wife critically ill in a maternity hospital here, Max Fried of No. 115 East 119th Street left the city shortly before he was ordered to report to training camp, and has never been heard from since by his wife or neighbors, according to Mrs. Pat Murphy, janitress of the apartment house where he lived.

Justice McCrete knew him and arranged for the funeral to-morrow from No. 122 Meersole Avenue, Brooklyn.

STRAY POLICE BULLET HITS 5-YEAR-OLD BOY

Detective's Shot at Alleged Thief's Heels Is Deflected,
Striking Child in Arm.

Five-year-old Charles Ottlein, No. 16 East 87th Street, was hit by a stray bullet yesterday when four detectives were chasing a man, giving his name as David Burke, No. 209 Alexandria Avenue, Bronx, alleged to have stolen a package from a delivery wagon. The bullet, fired by one of the detectives at the fugitive's heels, struck the sidewalk and was deflected, striking the child in the right arm. It caused only a flesh wound, according to Dr. Milligan of the Flower Hospital.

The police say they have been receiving complaints recently of packages stolen from delivery wagons, and yesterday saw the man they described as Burke take a package from a wagon belonging to Weber & Heilbroner. The package was recovered. Burke is being held at the East 67th Street Police Station charged with grand larceny.

TWO BLAZES NEAR WALDORF-ASTORIA

Thousands Block Fifth Avenue,
Watching Fires Opposite and Behind Hotel.

Thousands of persons blocked traffic in the vicinity of Fifth Avenue and 34th Street at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon when two fires were discovered, one in 34th Street, opposite the Waldorf-Astoria, and the other in 33d Street, behind the hotel.

Policeman Sheehan of Traffic B sent in an alarm when he saw smoke pouring from the third-story windows of the five-story loft building at No.

28 West 34th Street. The firemen found a lively blaze in Fried's Hair Shop, but soon got it under control. In a few minutes 34th Street was jammed with thousands of homing workers. Hundreds of guests at the Waldorf-Astoria stood in the windows and watched the firemen.

The police were just getting the crowd in hand and vehicular traffic started again when the second fire was found in the establishment of A. Schwartz & Co., manufacturers of coats and suits, on the tenth floor of the twelve-story building at No. 20 West 33d Street.

Nearly all tenants in both buildings had gone home. Police estimated the loss in each case at about $5,000.
